World Population Day

11-07-2025

Theme for 2025: “Harnessing Opportunities and Ensuring Rights and Choices for All”

World Population Day is observed every year on July 11 to raise awareness about global population issues. It was established by the United Nations in 1989, inspired by the global interest when the world population reached 5 billion on July 11, 1987.

At Government Degree College for Women, Marripalem, this day is commemorated to promote understanding of the impact of population growth on development, environment, and human rights.

This occasion reminds us of the importance of:

- Empowering women and girls
- Ensuring access to education and healthcare
- Promoting family planning and reproductive rights
- Balancing population and resources for sustainable development
- Let us pledge to create a world where every individual's rights are respected, and every life counts.
